National Museum of Health and Medicine Audiovisual Collection

Date of Records: 1918-present; Bulk dates 1940-1999

Size: 200+ boxes

Finding Aid: Compiled by Chief Archivist Michael Rhode, Assistant Archivists Joan Redding, Tabitha Oglesby, Heather Lindsay, and Cathy Sorge, Contract Historian Lisa Cartwright, Volunteer Marcy Leverenz, Interns Christopher Abraham; revised by Eric W. Boyle (2014)

Access and Use: The Otis Historical Archives is committed to providing open access to its collections as far as possible within the limits of privacy and confidentiality. Access to this collection is at the discretion of the Otis Historical Archives and material contained within the records may be subject to review before access is granted.

Collection History: The collection began during World War I when the Army Medical Museum's Medical Arts Department began using motion pictures to document medical treatments. It appears to have increased substantially during World War II when the Museum's Medical Illustration Service took footage overseas and in America. In Washington, the Museum hosted showings of films, the majority of which were probably propaganda. The propaganda films were transferred to the Library of Congress in the late 1990s, but the collection has been replenished through transfers of film and video from the Walter Reed Army Medical Center's TV branch (aka WRAMC-TV) and by a very large transfer of films from the Walter Reed Army Institute of Research. The collection remains open for the inclusion of more films into the foreseeable future.

Scope and Content: This collection is comprised nearly 4,300 medical films dating from 1918 to 2005. An additional 4000 films of surgery and the Vietnam War are included in the Walter Reed Army Institute of Research Film Collection, and some have been catalogued in the following list. As artifacts, they note the progress of medical science at various points in history. The medical topics addressed by the films are varied, including but not limited to AIDS, HIV, veterinary medicine, grand rounds lectures, the activities of the Army Medical Museum and the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology (AFIP), oral surgery, malaria, the treatments of various diseases, military hospitals, hygienic food processing, plastic surgery, autopsies, and entomology. Many are raw footage.

IMPORTANT NOTE TO RESEARCHERS!! The Otis Historical Archives does not have the requisite equipment to play many of the films in this collection. Those researchers who wish to view or use these films must independently contract with an approved outside vendor for duplication services and pay for a courier service as well as a duplicate copy for the Museum. Researchers should call in advance as many films are housed in a separate storage facility.

Most of the films in this collection were created by various U.S. Government entities, but films created by private entities and foreign governments may be covered by copyright. Films may be restricted for privacy. Notable creators in this collection include:

- Academy of Health Sciences
- Armed Forces Institute of Pathology (AFIP)
- American Red Cross
- American Society of Clinical Pathologists
- Royal Canadian Air Force
- United States Army
- Walter Reed Army Institute of Research (WRAIR)
- Walter Reed Army Medical Center (WRAMC)
- Walter Reed Army Medical Center Television (WRAMC-TV)

Arrangement and Processing Note: The films in this listing are organized by date from earliest to latest. Films without dates (there are over 1000 undated films in this collection) are listed at the end of this finding aid. Organizing by date makes the most sense for this collection for two reasons; not all of the films in this collection have titles and not all of the films in this collection have titles that relate to a given film's subject. Those films lacking a title are either described by a cursory examination of the first frames or notes written on the film container.

The Otis Historical Archives does not have the capability to play many of the films in this collection. Consequently, titles and descriptions may be in error as they are taken directly from what was written on each film's individual container at the time they were accessioned into the archives. Because the archives is forced to rely on what appears on each container, the amount of description afforded to each film varies. Some film descriptions are highly detailed and others are sorely lacking.
